It holds the eel of science by the tail."

POPE.

"All the realm of history and science may be indexed."

Prof. LOWELL.

EXPLANATORY NOTE

THE object of this work is to furnish the readers of THE HOMILETIC REVIEW an Index of volumes thirty-one to forty-two, that shall be at once simple and comprehensive, and in general agreement with the Index of the first thirty volumes, published in 1896. The dates included are from January, 1896, to December, 1901. The Index has been constructed upon the following principles:

I. The Sections and Departments running through two or more years are indexed under the heading "General Reference."

II. Every article that has appeared in the REVIEW is entered in the Index of Subjects and Authors by its title, which is found under the appropriate letter in the alphabet, the principal word in the title being used as the initial word. Where it has seemed best for ease of reference, the title of an article appears in different forms and under different letters of the alphabet.

Where the topics of a Department or General Subject are so related as not to be readily found or properly understood and appreciated except in their connection on the pages of the REVIEW, they have not only received separate entry under "Subjects and Authors," but have also been grouped under their appropriate titles, printed in Capitals and Small Capitals.

THE following groups will be found entered in this manner:

Autumn Helps and Hints.
Book Notices (Notices of Books of Homiletic Value).
Children's Day Helps and Hints.
Children's Sermons (Prize Hints).
Christmas Helps and Hints.
Communion Helps and Hints.
Communion Sermons (Prize Hints).
Easter Helps and Hints.
Funeral Sermons (Prize Hints).
Helpful Data in Current Literature.
Helps and Hints, Textual and Topical.
Illustrations (in Alphabetical Order).
Illustrations of Scripture Texts (in Order of Books of the Bible).
Independence-Day Helps and Hints.
Leaves from the Note-Books of the Professors.
Light on Scripture Texts from Recent Discoveries (under McCurdy).
Memorial Day Helps and Hints.
Miscellaneous Sermons (Prize Hints).
New-Year Helps and Hints.
Nuggets of Gold from Many Mines.
Prayer-Meeting Service.
Preachers Exchanging Views.
Question Box.
Questions on Social Themes.
Religious Thought and Movement.
Revival Sermons (Prize Hints).
Seed-Thoughts for Sermons.
Seed-Thoughts for Semrons and Public Discourse.
Sermonic Criticism.
Social Problem.
Social Study and Social Work.
Social Thought and Movement.
Some Critics Criticized.
Thanksgiving Helps and Hints.
Washington's Birthday, Helps and Hints for.

III. Articles without headings and topics treated within articles, but whose presence is not indicated by headings, appear under appropriate titles and letters of the alphabet.

IV. The names of authors appear in the Index of Subjects and Authors under the initials of their surnames, and their writings in the REVIEW are given either in alphabetic order of the subjects, or, where necessary, in the order of the time of writing.

V. Cross-references are given in the case of important words and themes. More such references would appear were not the subjects already, in many instances, inserted in more forms than one.

VI. The Index of Texts—which is a most valuable part of the work—is divided into two sections, the first being called "Texts and Treatment," and the second "Texts of Recent Sermons and Suggestive Themes." In the first section are inserted all Scripture texts and passages that appear at the heads of articles, and such also as occur within articles and seem worthy of the reader's attention. In the second section will be found references to thousands of "Texts," with the themes that have actually been drawn from them by prominent preachers, or themes that they seem naturally to suggest.

VII. At the end of each subject the length of the reference is indicated by a figure in parentheses: "(1)" indicates an elaborate treatment; "(2)" a less elaborate treatment; "(3)" a short article which yet suggests some substantial outline of thought; and "(4)" a brief hint or paragraph.

In the General Index, published in 1896, it was said that—

"The Thirty Volumes of THE HOMILETIC REVIEW covered by this Index constitute an unparalleled Cyclopedia of Homiletics, Pastoral Theology, Sermons by the greatest preachers of the world, Dogmatic and Biblical Theology, Apologetics and Criticism, Christian Evidences and Philosophy, Sociology and Religious Literature. While these Volumes, with the Index, are thus important for all ministers, they are clearly invaluable—if not absolutely indispensable—for the young preacher who would furnish himself with the best apparatus for his work and keep abreast of the times."

The same may be said of the contents embraced in the General Index of the TWELVE Volumes now issued. In the six years that they cover, THE HOMILETIC REVIEW has laid under contribution the best special work of the ablest thinkers and preachers of the generation, in the treatment of all the great topics of current and permanent interest.

Blank leaves alternate with the printed ones, to give the user space for indexing subsequent volumes of THE HOMILETIC REVIEW, or for entering any other appropriate matter to which he may wish to make ready reference, thereby making the volume a handy "Index Rerum."
